FILM REVIEW: The Social Network

A ____   I loved this film, not only because I'm an enthusiastic user of Facebook, but also because of how good the storyline was. It didn't seem boring, but very interesting. Jesse Eisenberg's portrayal of Mark Zuckerberg, the creator of Facebook, was really good. The 'Social Network' is among my top 10 films ever and I'm not alone in this view -- it has won almost every award going.

B ____   When The Social Network was released in 2010, Facebook was the most popular social networking site, with millions of users around the world. It seemed obvious that a film would be made about its creation. It was directed by David Fincher, starring Jesse Eisenberg as Mark Zuckerberg.

C ____   The Social Network is a very interesting film that will become a classic. I recommend this film to everyone, whether or not they're Facebook users. If you're not a fan of Facebook, your opinion is sure to change after watching this film.

D ____   Based on a true story, The Social Network is set in the early 2000s at Harvard University, the birthplace of the website that eventually became known as Facebook. During the film, friendships are made and broken, jealousy rears its head and lawsuits are filed as the interesting story of Facebook is played out.
